The police are investigating his death.

Mr. James lived at the clubs in the cities.

No one has slept in the mansion in the heart of the aristocratic section of Norfolk for about ten years. A room on the main floor had been used by James for a decade as an office while he was in Norfolk keeping his rental accounts. His habits were very queer, according to Joe Wright, a negro, who has long lived in who said Mr. James always locked himself in whenever he visited the mansion. Thursday, October 11, Mr. James was last seen alive by Wright's wife.

Yesterday the negro discovered through a window the dead body of his employer in a sitting posture in a chair at his desk.
